Tulip and willow design for printed textiles (1873)
William Morris (1834-1898), a founder of the British Arts and Crafts movement, sought to restore the prestige and methods of hand-made crafts, including textiles, in opposition to the 19th century tendency toward factory-produced textiles.

William Morris as a Craftsman
In his design career, William Morris produced textiles of several types, all emphasizing a return to hand-made values. He taught himself tapestry weaving, and – in the Victorian age of industrialization and mechanization – re-established hand-blocked printing for cotton and linen fabrics.
